THIS day His Majesty proceeded in state from Carlton-House to the House of Peers, where he arrived at a quarter before two o'clock; and, having alighted from the state coach, was received at the portico by the Great Officers of State and others, and proceeded to the robing room in the customary manner, wearing a cap of estate adorned with jewels: the sword of state being borne by Field-Marshal His Grace the Duke of Wellington, K. G.

His Majesty was there robed, and having put on the imperial crown, the procession moved into the House in the usual order.

His Majesty being seated upon the Throne, the Great Officers of State and others standing on the right and left, Sir Thomas Tyrwhitt, Knt. Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, was sent with a message from His Majesty to the House of Commons, commanding their attendance in the House of Peers. The Commons being come thither accordingly, His Majesty was pleased to deliver the following most gracious Speech to both Houses of Parliament:

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

I HAVE the satisfaction of informing you that I continue to receive from Foreign Powers the strongest strongest assurances of their friendly disposition towards this Country.

It is impossible for Me not to feel deeply interested in any event that may have a tendency to disturb the peace of Europe. My endeavours have therefore been directed, in conjunction with My Allies, to the settlement of the differences which have unfortunately arisen between the Court of St. Petersburgh and the Ottoman Porte, and I have reason to entertain hopes that these differences will be satisfactorily adjusted.

In My late visit to Ireland I derived the most sincere gratification from the loyalty and attachment manifested by all classes of My subjects. With this impression it must be matter of the deepest concern to Me that a spirit of outrage, which has led to daring and systematic violations of the law, has arisen and still prevails in some parts of that Country.

I am determined to use all the means in My power for the protection of the persons and property of My loyal and peaceable subjects; and it will be for your immediate consideration whether the existing laws are sufficient for this purpose.

Notwithstanding this serious interruption of public tranquillity, I have the satisfaction of believing that My presence in Ireland has been productive of very beneficial effects; and all descriptions of My people may confidently rely upon the just and equal administration of the laws, and upon My paternal solicitude for their welfare.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

It is very gratifying to Me to be able to inform you that during the last year the revenue has exceeded that of the preceding, and appears to be in a course of progressive improvement.

I have directed the estimates of the current year to

to be laid before you. They have been framed with every attention to economy which the circumstances of the Country will permit; and it will be satisfactory to you to learn that I have been able to make a large reduction in our annual expenditure, particularly in our Naval and Military establishments.

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

I have the greatest pleasure in acquainting you that a considerable improvement has taken place in the course of the last year in the commerce and manufactures of the United Kingdom, and that I can now state them to be, in their important branches, in a very flourishing condition.

I must at the same time deeply regret the depressed state of the agricultural interest.

The condition of an interest so essentially connected with the prosperity of the Country will, of course, attract your early attention; and I have the fullest reliance on your wisdom in the consideration of this important subject.

I am persuaded, that in whatever measures you may adopt, you will bear constantly in mind that in the maintenance of our public credit all the best interests of this Kingdom are equally involved; and that it is by a steady adherence to that principle that we have attained, and can alone expect to preserve, our high station amongst the Nations of the World.

SUPPLEMENT

LONDON GAZETTE of MARCH 19, 1822.

India-Board, March 19, 1822.

THE following copy of a report from Lieutenant-Colonel Maxwell, of the East India Company's Service, to the Adjutant-General of the Army in Bengal, dated Camp, at Mongroule, October 1, 1821, has been received at the East India-House:

SIR,

FOR the information of His Excellency the Most Noble the Commander in Chief I have the honour to report, that Captain Tod, Political Agent in the Western Rajpoot States, intimated to me yesterday, all hopes of negotiation having failed, and that I was consequently at liberty to attack the Maharao* Kishore Sing, but that it was politically expedient that the troops of the Raj Rana Zalim Sing should be principal, or at all events participate fully in the action. This morning both forces moved from their respective encampments at three and half-past three o'clock, for the purpose of engaging he enemy near Mongroule, and found him drawn up irregularly to the north of the town, with a nullah and broken ground in the rear. The cavalry, under the Maharao in person, upon the right, and his infantry or detached parties, with two guns, extending about three-fourths of a mile on the left, covered by a deep tank in front. On arriving within a quarter of a mile of his position, Captain Tod was desirous of once more giving the Maharao an opportunity of coming over, and requested operations might be suspended pending his proposal, but this terminating like all former attempts, the action soon after commenced by the Raj Rana's artillery, and six pieces, under Captain Campbell, opening directly upon, and within three hundred and fifty yards of the Maharao, whose cavalry appeared devoted to destruction in his behalf; but the whole of the artillery was too well served to be resisted beyond a few minutes by the most determined enemy. Unfortunately the continuation of Zalim Sing's fire, longer than was actually necessary to break those opposed, prevented so immediate a charge or pursuit as might have been wished. On its cessation the troops crossed the nullah, and Major Ridge, with two squadrons 4th light cavalry, soon came in sight of the principal body of the enemy's cavalry, under the Maharao in person.

He immediately formed and charged with the greatest promptitude, but I am deeply concerned to add, with the loss of two brave enterprising young Officers, Lieutenants Reade and Adjutant Clerk, who nobly fell in the service of their country. Major Ridge was severely though not dangerously wounded by a sabre in his head, and much as all those who admire his distinguished gallantry must be concerned at his sufferings, yet considerable consolation arises from the assurance of its not being likely to keep him more than a few days from the able discharge of his duty. The enemy was followed up till twelve o'clock by all the troops, and and Zalim Sing's horse were then directed to continue it so long as any hostile parties could be traced.

In result I have the honour to report the capture of two guns, nearly the whole of the baggage, and all the camp which was left standing, as if such a (to them) disastrous termination had never been contemplated. It is difficult to ascertain his loss with perfect accuracy, but from what has fallen under my own observation, I do not think it can be estimated under two hundred killed, including many Chiefs; and such of their own reports as have hitherto reached us make it five hundred. The Maharao's palkee*, with gold and silver sticks, have been brought into the Raj Rana's camp, and his younger brother, Maharao Pirthee Sing, is a prisoner with us, severely and dangerously wounded. I now come to the performance of a most pleasing part of my duty, in reporting generally the good conduct of all the troops under my command, but my best thanks are particularly due to Major Price, who commanded the right column of attack with the desired success; to Major Ridge and his highly distinguished corps, to the 4th light cavalry; to Major Kennedy, of the 5th light cavalry, for the zeal and energy displayed throughout the day, and the ready alacrity with which he advanced to the support of their more fortunate fellow soldiers in the 4th.

The promptitude, ardour, and indefatigable exertion of Captain Campbell, and his troop of native horse artillery were so conspicuous throughout the whole operation, as to claim my warmest approbation and thanks; nor can I pass over the exertion of Captain Farrington and the artillery under his immediate command, attached to Major Price's column, without the expression of my cordial acknowledgement. Captain Martin, commanding 2d batt. 6th reg. led on his corps with the greatest coolness and regularity, and soon defeated the enemy's infantry in his front. As it was necessary to have an Officer duly qualified attached to the troops of the Raj Rana Zalim Sing, I nominated Lieutenant M'Millan, of the 1st of the 6th, who was a volunteer in camp, to that important duty; and I feel much satisfaction in reporting his successful exertions and able management of that force. The conduct of those troops is highly praiseworthy and merits my warmest approbation. The artillery was admirably well served, and the whole were firm and collected during the action. A sense of duty induces me to acknowledge this, while at the same time I have no hesitation whatever in declaring that the result would have been if possible more satisfactory, had not their presence cramped the operations of the British force, or had they been so decidedly at my disposal as to have allowed me to have availed myself of their services at discretion.

It is with much pain I inclose a list of the killed and wounded, for though numerically small, the most brilliant success would have been dearly purchased by the loss and sufferings of those highly lamented Officers, whose names have been already recorded in this report.

In conclusion I have so many opportunities of noticing the admirable exertions of the Assistant Quartermaster-General, Captain Hall, that to enlarge upon them at present might be deemed superfluous; I can only add, that I this day received from him every assistance that the most active and indefatigable mind could possibly suggest.

My most sincere and grateful thanks are also due to Brigade Major Spiers, Captain Cubitt, Detachment Staff, and Lieutenant Burns, of the Commissariat, for their very great exertions the zeal and promptitude with which they conveyed all my orders and instructions.

I have, &c.

The first Plenipotentiary thereupon congratulated His Majesty, and the Plenipotentiaries, with their suite, making their reverences, withdrew.

The King, wearing the ensigns of the Order, then gave an audience to the Plenipotentiaries, at which their suite were severally presented; and immediately ately afterwards they had the honour of being introduced to Her Majesty the Queen and the Princesses.

THE SOVEREIGN.

The Sovereign and the Knights Companions being seated, Black Rod acquainted the Sovereign that Sir George Nayler, Knt. Garter Principal King of Arms, attended at the door, and humbly prayed to be admitted to take the oath of office, as Chief Officer of Arms of this Most Noble Order: and Garter, in his mantle, and wearing the chain and badge of his office (with which he had been invested by His Majesty on the 10th day of May last), being, by His Majesty's command, introduced by Black Rod, and kneeling near the Sovereign, the oath was administered to him by the Chancellor, Black Rod holding the book. Garter, rising, made his obeisance to the Sovereign, and having had the honour to kiss His Majesty's hand, withdrew to his place at the bottom of the table.

The Chancellor then acquainted the Sovereign that the Right Reverend Father in God Dr. George Tomline, Lord Bishop of Winchester, attended at the door, and humbly besought His Majesty that he might be admitted to take the oath of Prelate of this Most Noble Order, as enjoined by the statutes: whereupon the Bishop, in his mantle, and wearing his chain and badge (with which his Lordship had been previously invested by His Majesty), being, by by the Sovereign's command, introduced between Garter and Black Rod, was conducted to His Majesty, and kneeling, the oath of office was administered to him by the Chancellor, Garter holding the book. The Prelate, rising, had the honour to kiss the Sovereign's hand, and retired to his place on the right hand of His Majesty.

The Chancellor, standing in his place on the left hand of His Majesty, then signified to the Chapter the Sovereign's royal will and pleasure, that the vacant stall in the Royal Chapel of Saint George at Windsor be filled.

The suffrages were thereupon collected by the Chancellor (beginning with the Junior Knight Companion), and, by him, presented to the Sovereign, who was pleased to command his Lordship to declare, and he accordingly declared, that the Most Honourable George-James Marquess of Cholmondeley had been duly elected a Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter.

Then, by the Sovereign's command, the Marquess (being already a Knight) was received at the door of the Chapter-Room by the Marquess of Londonderry and the Earl Bathurst, the two Junior Knights Companions present, and conducted between them to His Majesty, preceded by Garter, carrying the ensigns of the Order upon a crimson velvet cushion, and by Black Rod.

The Marquess of Cholmondeley kneeling near the Sovereign, and Garter presenting, on his knee, the Garter, His Majesty, assisted by His Royal Highness the Duke of York and the Marquess of Salisbury, the two Senior Knights Companions present, buckled it on his Lordship's left leg; the Chancellor pronouncing the usual admonition.

Garter next presented the ribband with the George; and His Majesty, with the assistance of the aforesaid two Senior Knights Companions, put the same over the Marquess's left shoulder; the Chancellor pronouncing the admonition.

The Marquess, having kissed the Sovereign's hand, and received the congratulations of each of the Knights Companions, withdrew.

The Chancellor then, by command of the Sovereign, read a new statute, bearing date the 13th day of February last, dispensing with the existing statutes as far as may be required for the especial purpose therein mentioned, and declaring His Majesty Frederick the Sixth, King of Denmark, a Knight of the said Most Noble Order.

After which the Chancellor, by the Sovereign's command, read another new statute, bearing the same date as the preceding, dispensing with the existing statutes, as far as may be required for the especial purpose therein mentioned, and declaring His Most Faithful Majesty John the Sixth, King of Portugal and the Brasils, a Knight of the said Most Noble Order.

The Chapter being ended, Garter, by the command of the Sovereign, called over the Knights Companions, and a procession was made back to the private apartment of His Majesty, in the order as before.

After which His Majesty delivered the following most gracious Speech to both Houses of Parliament:

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

I CANNOT release you from your attendance in Parliament, without assuring you how sensible I am of the attention you have paid to the many important objects which have been brought before you in the course of this long and laborious session.

I continue to receive from Foreign Powers the strongest assurances of their friendly disposition towards this Country; and I have the satisfaction of believing that the differences which had unfortunately arisen between the Court of Saint Petersburgh burgh and the Ottoman Porte are in such a train of adjustment as to afford a fair prospect that the peace of Europe will not be disturbed.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons;

I thank you for the supplies which you have granted Me for the service of the present year, and for the wisdom you have manifested, in availing yourselves of the first opportunity to reduce the interest of a part of the National Debt, without the least infringement of Parliamentary faith.

It is most gratifying to Me that you should have been enabled, in consequence of this and of other measures, to relieve My people from some of their burthens.

My Lords, and Gentlemen;

The distress which has for some months past pervaded a considerable portion of Ireland, arising principally from the failure of that crop on which the great body of the population depends for their subsistence, has deeply affected Me.

The measures which you have adopted for the relief of the sufferers, meet with My warmest approbation, and seconded as they have been by the spontaneous and generous efforts of My people, they have most materially contributed to alleviate the pressure of this severe calamity.

I have the satisfaction of knowing, that these exertions have been justly appreciated in Ireland; and I entertain a sincere belief that the benevolence and sympathy so conspicuously manifested upon the present occasion, will essentially promote the object which I have ever had at heart, that of cementing the connection which subsists between every part of the empire, and of uniting in brotherly love and affection all classes and descriptions of My subjects.

Then

Then the Lord Chancellor, by His Majesty's command, said:

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

It is His Majesty's royal will and pleasure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Tuesday the eighth day of October next, to be then here holden; and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Tuesday the eighth day of October next.
